

ILLNOIS CONFEDERATE VETERANS GRAVES PROJECT
ROLL OF HONOR OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS BURIED IN ILLINOIS
(SHOWN BY COUNTY OF BURIAL) ©

Compiled by Gale F. Red, Project Coordinator

Updated: 28 January 2010

Until this project was begun nine years ago, there had never been an attempt to account for all of the Confederate military veterans who died and are buried in Illinois. This project is an attempt to find the graves of all of those men and to learn all we can about each of them in order to preserve the memory of the service they performed for their country. This listing reflects contributions from many people and sources, and is an on-going project. I try to keep the list as accurate as possible, but there may be some errors. If you know of any other Confederate Veteran graves located anywhere in Illinois or can make corrections or add any information on the men already on this list, please contact Gale F. Red, 5 Hunters Point, O'Fallon, IL 62269-3133, telephone 618-622-8949, email: galered@yahoo.com.

FORD COUNTY:

Drummer Township Cemetery (Gibson City Cemetery), Gibson City:

(According to the write-up on the cemetery, there was probably another Confederate in a lost unmarked grave. The Old Jordan Cemetery was discontinued as a burying ground in the early 1880's, and all marked graves and tombstones were moved to the new cemetery. Some of the unmarked graves could not be located. In some cases no relative or friend could be found. One such grave is said to have been that of a Confederate soldier. A special place north of the circle was set aside for the graves of those who had no family lot. Some markers were of wood - long since unreadable.)

Greenwood Cemetery, Decatur:

Greenwood Cemetery contains a fairly large section dedicated to the remains of Civil War soldiers. Here, heroic Illinois soldiers who bravely fought for the Union are scattered among some of their enemy. During the war, Confederate prisoners arrived in Decatur, many who were sick, injured, or already dead. It was often difficult to tell the living from the dead, and therefore it is believed that many Confederate soldiers were buried alive in Greenwood Cemetery. Most, if not all, of the Confederates are unknown soldiers, scattered throughout the cemetery in unmarked graves. The Confederates were buried in the poorest and most undesirable section of the cemetery and on a fairly steep hillside. Rain eventually washed away the hillside and unearthed many bodies, including some Union men. They were gathered up and reburied in a mass grave below. None of the Confederate graves are identifiable as such today and no record was kept of how many or any names. Some were intentionally buried at the top of a fairly steep hill, as it was seen as the least desirable place to be buried in the area. Ironically, years later, a memorial to the Union effort was placed at this location.

UNKNOWN CONFEDERATE SOLDIER – Grave marked with stone, but no information. He is most likely another one of the hundreds of Confederate soldiers who died in transit on the railroad on the way to Camp Douglas. They were often thrown off the train when they slowed down by a town, or taken off when they stopped for water or fuel. There is not any likely way to learn any more about them until we meet God.
